Psychology Marking Criteria for Practical Report (PSYC3005)

Your marker(s) base their marks and feedback on this table of criteria. Your practical report is broken down into different criterions (outlined in the left hand column), and your marker(s) will look at to what extent you fulfilled each criterion. Your overall mark reflects to what level you met the marking criteria as a whole.

Markers complete a checklist on eAssignment, like the one below, which shows you what grade you received for each criterion. It is made available to you when you access your marks and feedback. The checklist helps you to understand the overall mark you received for your PSYC3005 Empirical Project: Research Paper, practical report.

	Needs much more work (E = Fail)		Needs some more work (D = 3)			Satisfactory (C = 2.2)			Very Good (B = 2.1)			Excellent (A = 1)
Categorical mark	0/18	30	38	42	45	48	52	55	58	62	65	68	72	78	87/100
Introduction: Description of research question(s)					-	-						-		-
Introduction : Rationale for present study
Method: Descriptions allow a full replication
Method: Appropriate Choice (e.g. participant, variables, design, procedure)
Results : Methods for data handling (e.g. summary, analysis, presentation)
Results : Interpretations
Discussion: Address the proposed question(s)
Discussion: Relate to relevant theories/models
Discussion: Appreciation of different implications
Overall: Coherence of the report
Overall: Analytical and critical capacity

Overall : Novelty in contribution
Presentation : Use of language
Presentation: Use of academic convention			